Dulles Loses Face With Democrats Over Yalta Release

Feel He Gave In To GOP's Pressures

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles apparently has lost face among Democratic leaders of Congress by suddenly releasing the Yalta documents after a luncheon conference with Republicans who had demanded their publication.

A canvass by influential Democrats of how the release of the documents came about may result in increased wariness on the part of the opposition in accepting Dulles' proposals in the field of international relations.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic Senate leader, has said his party will not alter its approach to bipartisan cooperation on foreign affairs.

But a high ranking Democrat who asked not to be quoted by name said party leaders had concluded as a result of their survey that Dulles yielded to political considerations in this case and might be expected to do so again.

This feeling was said to have been concurred in by Johnson, House Speaker Rayburn of Texas, Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

George already has criticized release of the papers dealing with the World War II Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference on the ground it may make more difficult the holding of future international conferences which he said are essential if war is to be avoided.

Supplementing this in an interview, George said he fears that speakers are going to give the Yalta report "more and more political color, which cannot be helpful at this time."

George's reaction may be carried over into what have become almost weekly conferences between him and Dulles, at which the Democratic chairman has been kept abreast of behind the scenes developments.

Although they have compiled a dossier of the incidents which led to Dulles' reversal of his original decision not to publish the documents at this time, Democratic leaders thus far have avoided publicly criticizing the secretary.

Their dossier notes that Dulles said last Monday that the documents could not be released because they had a bearing on "national security and our relations with other powers."

After a luncheon with Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, and Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, Dulles released the papers Wednesday night. Knowland and Bridges had been demanding that the record be made public.

One Democrat said their leaders want to know what happened between Monday and Wednesday to change the picture so far as national security and international relations are concerned.

They also were interested, this Democrat said, in the announcement by James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, that President Eisenhower was not consulted about the release.

Kahn Book Listed As Soviet Job

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said today it had received testimony that a book of which Albert Kahn is listed as co-author was written in the Soviet Foreign Office.

Kahn is one of the publishers of turnabout witness Harvey Matusow's book, "False Witness." Called before the subcommittee recently, Kahn refused to say whether he was a Communist.

Nautilus Leaves With AEC Members

GROTON, Conn., March 20 (AP) — The atomic submarine Nautilus left today for an overnight demonstration cruise with the 14 members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy on board.

She is expected to make several dives on the trip. The cruise will be "in and around" Long Island Sound, a Navy spokesman said. Committee members on board included Rep. James E. Van Zandt, (R-Pa.).

FRIED ONIONS AND SCORCHED DRIVER resulted from this wreck near Bartonville Saturday. Crash was caused by blowout of right front tire. Truck and trailer-load of onions wound up in jumbled burning heap after Budd Lake, N. J., driver lost control. Damage was estimated at $14,000.

Scotland's Denominations Are Apparently Solidly Behind Graham's Evangelical Crusade

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 20 (AP) — American Evangelist Billy Graham took a back seat at his first religious service in Scotland today and then preached to a half-empty church.

While thousands were clamoring for tickets to Graham's six-week "Tell Scotland" crusade which opens tomorrow, the evangelist made a surprise visit to the Downhill Presbyterian Parish Church.

Capehart Sees 'Red' In Stock Market Probe

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) demanded today that Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith be recalled as a witness in the Senate's stock market inquiry to explain a 1949 pamphlet which, Capehart said, "praises communism."

Galbraith denied the pamphlet did any such thing. He accused Capehart of deliberately quoting one passage out of context, and said the 1949 publication was "supported in general" by Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the President, and Allen W. Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Capehart stirred up this new storm in the stock market controversy in the course of a television debate (NBC's "American Forum") with Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.). Both are members of the Senate Banking Committee which, under the chairmanship of Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.), has been studying market conditions.

Bridegroom Dies

LEESBURG, Va., March 20 (AP) — A 70-year-old bridegroom, returning from a Florida honeymoon, was killed and three others, including his 59-year-old bride, were injured in a two-car collision yesterday at a highway intersection 12 miles south of here. Dr. Edwin Leroy Royer, of 2121 E. Water St., Lock Haven, Pa., died of head injuries shortly after admittance to Loudon Hospital.

Baby Stolen 29 Minutes After Delivery, Found; Houston Nurse Held As Kidnapper

BEAUMONT, Tex., March 20 (AP) — A former nurse's aide who repeatedly screamed "It's my own baby" was charged today with kidnapping an infant from his hospital crib 29 minutes after birth.

Mrs. Pauline Schulze, attractive 30-year-old mother of three sons, was taken into custody with the unnamed baby girl at 2:30 a.m. today at her home at Houston, about 85 miles west of this Texas Gulf Coast city.

Capt. J. D. Walters of the Houston sheriff's office said Mrs. Schulze, hysterical during long hours of questioning, apparently had an overwhelming desire to bear a fourth child.

The blue-eyed, sturdy baby was taken from its nursery bassinet at East Texas Baptist Hospital here yesterday by a woman disguised as a nurse. The baby was returned this morning to the nursery room.

Beaumont police escorted the ambulance and also an ambulance bringing Mrs. Schulze her to face charges.

The captain also said Mrs. Schulze, who had been treated in

Driver Hurt; Onions Cooked In Wreckage

A TRUCKLOAD of onions was burned and the driver injured in a crash near Bartonville early Saturday morning.

Treated for cuts on the head and hands at General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, was Richard Jones, 23, Budd Lake, N. J.

Stroudsburg State police said Jones told them the right front tire blew out and he lost control. The truck overturned, and a fire started in the cab.

Jones' clothing was scorched before he got clear. The fire spread to the trailer, was extinguished by Stroud Township Fire Co. about 2:15 a.m.

Police estimated damage to the truck, trailer and contents at $14,000.

Top Level Conference

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called tonight for a top level Big Four meeting—possibly this year—on the ground that it offers "the real hope at avoiding war."

Such a meeting would bring together President Eisenhower and the chiefs of Russia, Britain and France.

George said he thought such a meeting should be held "as soon as it is practicable" but after completion of ratification of the agreements under which West Germany would be rearmament as a full partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in Western European Union.

George was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" television program.

Reds Blast Kleiber

BERLIN, March 20 (AP) — The manager of the Communist-controlled East Berlin Opera blasted Erich Kleiber today for quitting as director and fleeing to the West.

The real mother, Mrs. George Wharton, knew nothing of the kidnapping until her doctor advised her this morning her baby was safe. The mother and baby were reunited briefly in the privacy of Mrs. Wharton's hospital room.

Mrs. Wharton, described as making a normal recovery from childbirth, was then given a sedative to assure the rest a new mother needs.

Her baby, born at 12:46 p.m. yesterday, was taken at 1:15 p.m. "It's my baby, I know it's my own baby," Mrs. Schulze sobbed under hours of questioning. She told officers she gave birth to the child at her home just outside Houston's northeast city limits.

The woman first hysterically rejected suggestions she be examined to see if she had given birth to a baby recently. Capt. Walters said she finally relented and that the examinations showed she had not.

The captain also said Mrs. Schulze, who had been treated in

Red Chinese Build String Of Air Bases

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 20 (AP) — Communist China plans a string of bases along the southeast coast to give it control of the air over Formosa Strait, informed Nationalist sources said today.

Without such air control, any invasion of Formosa would be considered suicidal. But the completion of these Red bases will take many months.

"Within the next two years," one high Nationalist official said, "the area south of the Yangtze will be full of Communist air fields."

That is not the case now. From Shanghai on the Yangtze southward there are only three other important bases. None is in convenient range of this Nationalist fortress island.

Shanghai, 400 miles north of Formosa, is the most important. It has four jet air fields alone. Second in importance are the fields of Canton, in South China 450 miles west of Formosa.

Lesser bases are located at Ningpo, 95 miles south of Shanghai, and Hangchow, at about the same distance to the southwest.

Leaders qualified to speak for the government say the Communists are expanding their air capabilities on this pattern:

1. Southwestward from Shanghai along the railroad to Nanchang. This would give the Communists a string of interior bases in South China.

2. Southward along the coast. This holds the most direct threat to Formosa.

The Communist plan is to have jet air bases strung out every 150 miles or so, these sources say.

The biggest Communist coastal operation now is at Luchiao, 229 miles north of Formosa. Here a huge jet base is being rushed to completion.

Nationalist quarters say other jet bases along the southeast coast are planned as follows:

At Wenchow, 190 miles north of Formosa; at Foochow, 150 miles west of Formosa's northern tip; in the Amoy area across the Strait from Formosa, and at Swatow, 220 miles west of Formosa at the southern end of Formosa Strait.

The high Nationalist source reiterated that, contrary to reports, there has been no air buildup in Fukien Province opposite Formosa.

"But it's only a matter of time," he added.

Even without nearby bases, the Communists can launch air attacks on Formosa and invade the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matsus.

The Nationalists consider a Communist attack on Quemoy or the Matsus is likely. Even without control of the air the Reds have the capability for a seaborne attack.

The Nationalists also believe air raids on Formosa are possible and likely. They see as a possible deterrent, however, the prospect of U.S. retaliation under provisions of the mutual defense treaty.

No Red MIG jets are reported operating now in the Formosa Strait area.

If the Communists dare to stage air attacks on Formosa they might use a few jet bombers, with escort, for high altitude attacks. They are reported to have twin-jet bombers at Ningpo.

The Nationalists describe Quemoy and the Matsus as vantage points inside the Strait which can give 15 minutes warning should jets strike at Formosa.

Eisenhower Winning Tax Cut Fight, But Trade Program Heads For Real Difficulty

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga.) joined key House Democrats today in predicting the House will drop its $20.6-billion income tax cutting proposal and accept the Senate version of an administration revenue bill.

This would simply extend present corporation and excise tax rates one year beyond the scheduled expiration date of April 1.

Any such result would mark a victory for President Eisenhower in the tax field at a time when the odds apparently are mounting against his proposal for a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements program.

George, a top member of the Senate Finance Committee which handles both bills, said he doesn't believe the House will insist on retaining its Democratic-sponsored income tax cut provision if that would mean killing the revenue bill.

"It is inconceivable to me that the House will let these corporation and excise taxes die," he said in an interview. "The eastern I have for the House leadership is so high that I cannot conceive they will permit this matter to be brought to an impasse."

Democrats in the House conceded privately yesterday they probably have lost the fight for an income tax cut this year, and would have to accept the Senate bill.

Eisenhower has written George and Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) of the finance committee expressing his "indebtedness" to them for their backing of his opposition to any tax cuts at this time.

While Eisenhower appeared to have this battle won, there was new doubt that he could get final approval of a bill permitting gradual reduction of tariffs over the next three years, even though the House has passed it.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, said the bill is "in for a lot of trouble" in the Senate. "I think it is going to come out of the finance committee in a different form from that in which it passed the House," he said in an interview.

George said he expects several amendments to be offered but couldn't guess now which might prevail.

Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.), a finance committee member, said in a statement that "from what I have learned, substantial amending is assuredly in store for the bill."

"It is only to be hoped that the amendments will not be so broad as to have crippling effects on our trade relations," he added.

Announcing the new post, the White House said Stassen would be responsible for developing recommendations which will become "basic policy toward disarmament" when approved by the President and National Security Council.

It added congressional concurrence would be sought in advance of specific action or policy recommendations "when indicated as desirable or appropriate under our constitutional processes."

Stassen, like Humphrey, is from Minnesota and was governor of that state three times. He is now director of the Foreign Operations Administration, a $22,500-a-year post that Congress has ordered abolished June 30. Special assistants to the President get $20,000 a year.

Stassen will sit in on meetings of the National Security Council at the President's invitation. As FOA director he is now a member of the council, the nation's top policy-making group on defense matters.

Humphrey said announcement of the new post raised hopes that the United States would be more clearly seen in "its traditional role of being a peace-loving nation."

He added "a little less talk about our hydrogen bombs and more emphasis on our desire for peace would stand us well in world public opinion."

"This is particularly welcome news in view of the fact that for the past week our top officials—the President, vice president and secretary of state—have all been stressing our determination to use nuclear weapons if necessary," Humphrey said.

"Of course most people of the world now realize that any effective disarmament can only be based upon a foolproof guarantee from the Soviet Union, backed by the United Nations."

Humphrey said he had "one early suggestion" for Stassen: "Go back and review the disarmament proposals of the late Sen. Brien McMahon," of Connecticut.

McMahon proposed several times that the United States offer a 50-billion-dollar global aid program if Soviet Russia and other nations would agree to atomic control with rigid inspections. He said this could be coupled with a worldwide agreement to reduce all armament spending by two-thirds.

Sedative For Atomic Jitters Wins Support

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) called today for careful coordination with Congress on any proposals worked out by Harold E. Stassen in his new post as special assistant to the President for disarmament.

Along with other members of Congress, Humphrey was surprised by the White House announcement yesterday that the new Cabinet-level job has been created and given to Stassen.

Republicans and Democrats alike praised the idea of such special emphasis on disarmament. Democrats privately credited the White House with an astute political move.

"A world that has the atomic jitters may find this announcement a political sedative," Humphrey said in an interview.

"Since Congress eventually must decide upon the level of our military strength, it would be wise if any plans or proposals developed by Mr. Stassen are carefully coordinated with the Congress," he added. Humphrey is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Announcing the new post, the White House said Stassen would be responsible for developing recommendations which will become "basic policy toward disarmament" when approved by the President and National Security Council.

It added congressional concurrence would be sought in advance of specific action or policy recommendations "when indicated as desirable or appropriate under our constitutional processes."

New York Sets Up Funds For Huge New Delaware Dam

Cannonsville Project On To Tap River

NEW YORK CITY has set aside $85.3 million to start work this year on a $140-million dam and tunnel which will divert water from the Delaware River.

That was the report this month in the Engineering News-Record, a trade journal in the engineering field.

The dam will be built on the west branch of the Delaware at Cannonsville, N. Y. Water from it will be transmitted to existing water works through a deep-rock tunnel 44 miles long.

The Cannonsville project is the third phase of New York City's attempt to prevent the bath-less d, experienced in past drought seasons by New Yorkers.

The first stage was the building of dams on Roundout Creek, a Hudson River tributary, and on Neversink River, a Delaware tributary.

The second stage—now nearing completion—is the building of the Peapack Dam at Downs, N. Y., on the west branch of the Delaware.

Cannonsville is the big gun of the over-all project. It is expected by New York engineers to insure the city's water needs up to the year 2000.

New York City won the right to build the Cannonsville dam after a long wrangle with Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. The squabble was finally settled by the U. S. Supreme Court in June 1954.

That court had issued a decree in 1931 which allowed New York City to divert up to 440 million gallons daily from the Delaware. After a legal free-for-all before the court during which even Philadelphia tried (unsuccessfully) to get into the act, the court revised its decree and allowed New York City to divert up to 800 million gallons daily.

At the same time the decree provided for certain required releases of water by New York to keep the flow up during dry weather—plus safeguards to make sure the requirements are carried out.

The decree gives New Jersey 100 million gallons daily, and the right to join Pennsylvania in building a dam at Wallpack Bend near Bushkill. New Jersey can get 30 per cent of the water impounded by the dam in return for chipping in 30 per cent of the cost and lending a hand with property condemnation on the New Jersey side.

The Cannonsville dam originally was part of the INCODEL program. This program, drawn up by engineers and representatives of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Delaware, kicked around for more than a decade, finally was approved by three of the states involved.

But Pennsylvania under Gov. John S. Fine balked at the final moment. It was this that at last sent New York City before the Supreme Court in its successful bid to insure its own water supply.

Sect. Of Labor & Industry John Torquato Lauds Italian-Americans At Anniversary

ROSETO — The Marconi Social Club celebrated its 50th anniversary here in the club's hall with a gala banquet Saturday night with 200 persons in attendance.

The main speaker of the evening was John Torquato, Pennsylvania Secretary of Labor and Industry, who lauded all Italian-Americans for their devotion to this country in his address. Torquato further lauded the club and the borough of Roseto in a special tribute to the club's golden anniversary. Torquato also accorded special recognition to Phillip Carbone Ruggiero, one of the seven living charter members of the organization and the only one able to attend the dinner.

Other speakers on the program were: Joseph Pacchioli, Northampton County assemblyman, from Easton, who was introduced by Torquato; Mariano Saveri, East Bangor, a past president of the club; Phillip Lopresti, Cambria County assemblyman, and Justin Jiruliano, Bethlehem attorney and Democratic aspirant for district attorney for Northampton County.

Dr. Anthony LeDonne, toastmaster, read congratulatory telegrams from A. V. Capano, Washington County assemblyman and Mrs. Jeanette Reibman, Easton, Northampton County assemblyman. LeDonne also introduced guests: Horace Heller, Daily Record editor; Roderick MacLeod, photographer; James Gaffney; Alfred DeRenzi, and Miss Josephine Farace.

The program was opened with the invocation by the Rev. Genaro Leone, C. M., administrator of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church, Roseto. Club president Anthony Z. Falcone delivered the welcome address. He was presented an award by Vice President Nicholas Pullo. Other officers of the club introduced were: John P. Carbone, financial secretary; Pasquale Casciano, treasurer; Nicholas P. Falcone, steward; Dick Brando, Bruno Romano, Joseph Zito, and Martin DeFranco, trustees.

The living and deceased charter members of the club were honored. Special awards were awarded the seven living charter members, though only one was in attendance. Phillip Carbone Ruggiero, in attendance with his wife, was presented for the award by his son Armon, Phillip Sabatino, Pietro DeGrosso, Philip G. Donatelli, Raphael Basso, Dominic Falcone and Leonard Soreca are the other living charter members of the organization which was founded in 1905.

The Rev. Rosario Sciarone, D. D., pastor of St. Rocco's Church, Martins Creek, was also introduced, and the banquet ended with the benediction by the Rev. Charles J. Starzer, pastor of the Roseto Presbyterian Church.

The Marconi Social Club was first organized in 1901 and incorporated on March 14, 1905, in the Common Pleas Court of Northampton County, Easton, by Judge H. W. Scott.

The club has played a prominent part in the activities and affairs of the borough of Roseto since its incorporation. It had an important part in the incorporation of Roseto as a borough in 1912 paying the court costs of incorporation. It was named after the famed Italian scientist and inventor of the wireless, William Marconi.

Philip Sabatino served as the president of the organization in its first administration. Philip G. Donatelli, Raphael Basso, Michael Soret, Joseph Policelli, Lewis DeLuca, Anthony Costone, Lawrence Falcone and Pietro DeGrosso served as the other officers of that administration. All but Sabatino, Donatelli, Basso and DeGrosso are now deceased.

The club's membership has reached a zenith of 1,100 members. At present, the membership is listed at 750. The Club has been used as the meeting place for many local groups. The club building was erected in 1930 during the administration of Benjamin Cassara.

In 1947, the Women's Auxiliary was organized with Miss Josephine Farace serving as its first president. Saturday night's dinner was prepared and served by a special committee of the Women's Auxiliary which included Grace Ruggiero, chairlady; Josephine Farace, Mamie Ruggiero, Mrs. Mary Z. Falcone, Mrs. Grace Carbone, Mrs. Angeline Pullo, Margaret Ruggiero and Lucy Schiavone.

Heading the committee on arrangements was George Giacchino. Other members of the committee were Carmen Ruggiero, Bruno Romano, Mariano Saveri, John P. Carbone and Pasquale Casciano.

Sportsmen Vote Free Hand On Deer Season

HARRISBURG, March 20 (P)—Organized sportsmen of Pennsylvania left the State Game Commission with a free hand today to decide whether there should be a hunting season for antlerless deer this fall.

County delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs rejected 39-16 a resolution to ask the commission to ban an open season on doe and bucks with antlers less than 3 inches long.

In another major action, the federation favored establishment of a merit system for state workers in the Forests and Waters Department as a means of attracting and holding Pennsylvania-trained workers in management of the state's soil, water and forests.

Major opposition against the resolution seeking to ban an antlerless deer season came from delegates of northern counties. They contended that the deer herd is too large for the forest food available and that many deer were starving for lack of food.

In such circumstances in the past, the Game Commission has conducted special limited hunting seasons for antlerless deer in order to trim the herd. There was no antlerless deer season in 1954.

Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of Forests and Waters, urged adoption of the proposal for a merit system in his department. He said such a system was needed to attract good men into the state service.

"For 20 years," he said, "we have trained men at the Pennsylvania State University only to have them go into the National Forestry Service or into other states."

There is no security, he said, for specialized workers under the present system.

The federation delegates also unanimously endorsed a resolution calling for legislation that would allow issuance of hunting and fishing licenses in the same manner as automobile drivers' licenses.

The delegates voted down a controversial plan to establish four additional "Fishermen's Paradise" centers such as the one now located in Centre County, near Bellefonte.

Action was deferred on a resolution calling for a ban on importation of the San Juan rabbit. Several bills are pending in the legislature to stop importing such rabbits on grounds they pose a threat to the state's agricultural economy. Other resolutions adopted included:

Ask the Game Commission to use money from royalties on mineral resources taken from state game lands for rehabilitation of the land where it was damaged by mining or well drilling operations.

Reestablish the small game kill report in order to determine more precisely the number of animals killed in the state each year.

Allow use of the 22 caliber pistol for shooting small game and vermin.

Boost the fine for illegally killing a deer from 100 to 200 dollars.

Ask the legislature to authorize use of honor prisoners to assist in conservation work.

Newly Organized State Liquor Control Board Issues Edict On New 'Get Tough' Policy

HARRISBURG, March 20 (P)—The newly reorganized State Liquor Control Board served notice today of a "get tough" policy in enforcing the state's liquor laws at drinking establishments.

Chairman Patrick E. Kerwin said that stiff penalties may be expected as the board reviews citation cases developed by its enforcement division against tavern, restaurant and club license holders.

Kerwin said the board will crack down hard on the sale of liquor to those under 21 years, to intoxicated persons and against license holders who provide objectionable entertainment.

"This doesn't mean that we are going to go easy on other violations of the liquor laws," Kerwin said.

Kerwin and his two associates, John S. Rice, Gettysburg, and Donald A. Behney, Lebanon, took over operation of the commonwealth's huge liquor monopoly a month ago under appointment by Democratic Gov. George M. Leader. They replaced the Republican board headed by Frederick T. Gelder.

The first indication of the board's new "get tough" policy was indicated last week in a suspension for 120 days of the catering club license of Cocalico Post No. 492, American Legion, in Denver, Lancaster County.

The board lifted the license of that club from April 12 to Aug. 10 as a result of an investigation of a traffic crash involving the death of five young people. The board charged they visited the club before starting on the tragic automobile ride.

Broken Dam Floods Homes At Pen Argyl

PEN ARGYL — West Pennsylvania Avenue residents said they never seen so much water over the dam Saturday morning.

A dam owned by Bangor Mills Co. broke in mid-morning. It flooded cellars in homes along the avenue and along W. Applegate St. where it was located.

Pen Argyl Fire Co. was called out to pump water from the cellars. They had to clean the streets too.

The water carried buckets of clay-colored "goo" with it when it broke loose.

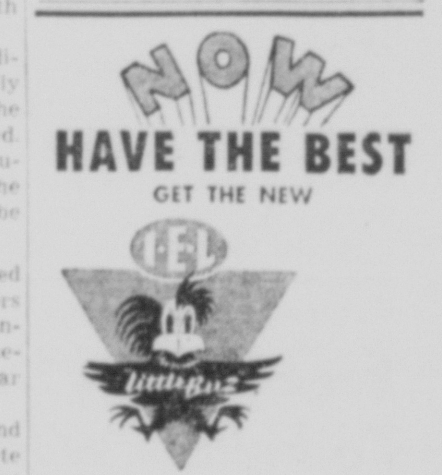

Because of the pumping action traffic was re-routed past the district part of Saturday.

Doctors In U. S. Not Prepared To Treat Radiation

WASHINGTON, March 20 (P)—A Civil Defense official told senators he would have to say that doctors in the United States "are not prepared" to treat victims of atomic radiation.

Ralph E. Spear, assistant administrator for planning, testified before a Government Operations subcommittee headed by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Humphrey asked whether, if an atomic or hydrogen bomb were dropped on an American city, the American people "can be assured" that the medical profession "can treat them" for radiation injury.

Spear replied: "No, honestly I would have to say they are not prepared."

But, he continued, he thinks the medical profession is in better shape to deal with civil defense problems it would encounter than are "many other services."

Spear said there have been no seminars with medical groups.

French Adopt Budget With Deficit Certain

PARIS, March 20 (P)—The French National Assembly approved a budget measure providing for the nation's income today before knowing what the year's expenses will amount to.

A deficit is anticipated but the size will not be known until the government completes action on the military budget and other expenditures for the current calendar year, which is the same as the fiscal year.

The budget measure approved early this morning by a vote of 392 to 211 anticipates an income of $8,600,000,000. This is expected to fall about 10 per cent short of expenditures. The government is currently working on the military budget for the year and the civil budget is in the process of parliamentary consideration.

The measure passed this morning—in effect extending tax laws already on the books—is also under fire and revisions have been promised by Premier Edgar Faure.

Protect Our Water Resources

A suggestion that the state government establish a water commission or authority to conserve Pennsylvania's water supplies comes from Philadelphia.

The Philadelphians are concerned about heavy withdrawals of water from the Delaware River watershed for the use of New York City. They believe Pennsylvania should guard its rights in this respect and propose a state agency to do that job.

Water is something we've always taken for granted in Pennsylvania. Our mountains catch it and send it downstream. We've always had it, we've used it and abused it, without much thought of the future.

But these same water supplies are becoming more important each year. They're one of our best natural resources. Rightly used, they'll attract industry and support the life of our cities, which can't function without water. Wrongly used, they'll put a blight on us.

Our laws have recognized to some extent the public's rights in water resources. We're now enforcing the law banning stream pollution, requiring communities to install sewage disposal plants, abating industrial pollution, even attempting to keep down mine water pollution. The construction of dams is regulated by the state.

But that's as far as we've gone. The Department of Health has a Sanitary Water Board to administer the anti-pollution laws. The Department of Forests and Waters has a Water & Power Resources Board to regulate the construction of dams. The same department studies stream flow, handles some flood control projects and helps operate a federal-state flood forecasting service.

Surely, the overall protection, administration and conservation of our waters is important enough to justify a state agency charged with all of these related duties.

Such an agency need not cost any more than the present scattered agencies and bureaus cost, and Gov. George M. Leader might well consider the suggestion in making proposals for reorganization of state offices.

The Philadelphians want long-range planning for use of available water supplies. Considering the increasing importance of water, that seems like a thoroughly reasonable suggestion.

Give To The Red Cross Now!

Less than one-fifth of the Monroe County Chapter American Red Cross fund campaign has been received. There's about ten days left in which to bring the chapter up to required operating-fund safety of $16,190.

So much depends on the Red Cross drive that none of us can afford to let this major service agency go without having obtained the funds required to give each of us the services it offers.

In one instance alone—the blood donor campaign—lack of finances could be fatal to any one of us. Without the funds required to collect blood—yes it costs money to collect blood for all of us, even though the blood is given free by donors—the pint or pints of blood which save lives cannot be collected.

If you haven't been reached by a Red Cross fund worker, go to headquarters in Court House Square, Stroudsburg with your gift—or call there and someone will collect your contribution.

Free Society Killed By Compulsion To Follow What One Does Not Accept

I once heard a speaker startle an audience by asking: "Are you happy?"

The reaction was curious because obviously the happy people had never thought about it. They went to their contented way.

Paul H. Appleby, who controls the happiness of the citizens of New York State because he manages their Budget, once defined civilization as: "... the attainment and further pursuit of social and personal complexity. This complexity is sought through division of labor and through specialization and extension of activity, experience, and learning, all of which are possible only through progressively more intricate forms of social organization..."

This could be a Marxian view of man as a functional creature whose nature and character are determined by his environment and the tools he uses for a livelihood. It omits morals, ethics, conscience, joy, pride in self, pride in family, Thomas Carlyle once defined modern civilization as having three great elements, Gunpowder, Printing and the Protestant Religion. Perhaps some philosopher today might say that it is atomic fusion, electronics and fear.

To most of us, civilization means the lifting of man from a driven, fearful clod, existing only to perform his biologic functions, to an ever higher respect for an aspiration to moral and spiritual values, the greatest of which is freedom of the mind and dignity of person.

One of the consequences of such a definition as Mr. Appleby's is the reduction of man into elites of specialists: A farmer may not be a plumber because he does not belong to the plumber's union; a teacher of Greek may not play a bassoon in a symphony orchestra, unless he has James Pettilio's imprimatur; a citizen may not have a cracker-barrel discussion on fluoridation—a timely topic—because he is not a member of the American Dental Association. Yet Henry Ford did remarkable work on the internal combustion engine without having a degree from any university and Benjamin Franklin has been honored as a wise man and a philosopher without a better formal education than serving as a printer's devil.

George Bernard Shaw said: "... The Anarchist, the Fabian, the Salvationist, the Vegetarian, the doctor, the lawyer, the parson, the professor of ethics, the gymnast, the soldier, the sportsman, the inventor, the political program-maker, all have some prescription for bettering us; and almost all their remedies are physically possible and aimed at admitted evils. To them the limit of progress is, at worst, the completion of all the suggested reforms and the leveling up of all men to the point attained already by the most highly nourished and cultivated in mind and body..."

Every time a plan for improving the entire human race by some artifice comes along, thousands join a cult and grow wildly and fanatically enthusiastic about it and insist not only on converting others, which is no crime, but on having a law passed on the subject, which surely is a moral crime. My old friend, Bernard Macfadden, tried to turn the world vegetarian. Macfadden only propagated for his vegetarians, but Volstead deprived a nation of beer by law and sent them to bath-tub gin and the reign of Al Capone.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, a learned and respected physician, makes the point that he favors fluoridation because some experts favor it. He says: "To me, the distressing feature of all this fight about fluoridation is that people who know absolutely nothing about the subject refused to take the advice of the leading health authorities in the land who alone are competent to review the facts and to decide what should be done..."

Does that make anything right? Those who were paid to be our experts in the State Department got us into that complex of miseries that came out of the Yalta Conference. Were they right because we paid them to know? Dr. Alvarez was indignant at an example of virtuous living. But we are not forced to buy iodized salt; we are still free to buy plain salt. And nobody pours gallons of iodine into our drinking water. It is the compulsion to follow what one does not accept that is the difference between a free society and Mr. Appleby's free society.

The theory of government by experts is not new. Sparta had it and Plato believed in it. But Lincoln preferred a government of, by and for the people which is what we like hereabouts.

Letters To The Editor

The Daily Record welcomes letters with a bona fide address given. Such signatures and addresses will be withheld if the writer desires.

Editor of Daily Record

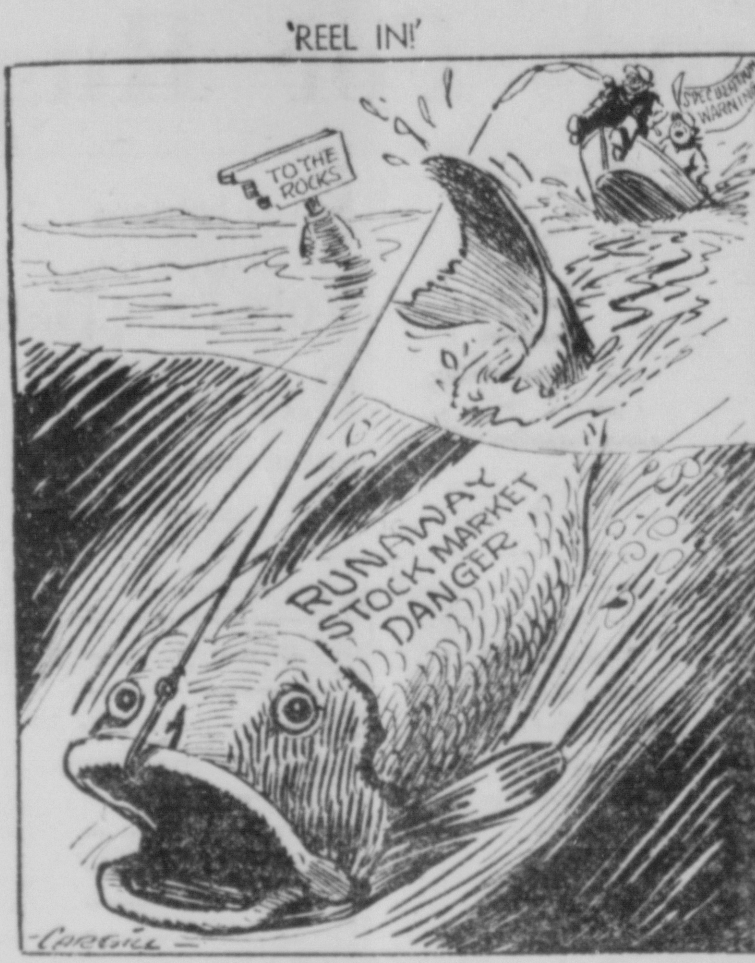

Dear Sir: I would like to pat Mayor Harris on the back for not signing the bill to curb and gutter Phillips St. on the one side. Whoever saw a street that was curbed and guttered on one side. In regards to the property owner who pleaded poverty, what about the property owners on other streets.

And what ever happened to the proposition to put sidewalk on Phillips St. There are plenty of women and children who have to walk in the road (which is about 4 blocks from a school) and cars going up and down about 40 miles per hour. They will wait until someone gets hit and then they will do something about it. Don't wait until the horse gets stolen, lock the barn door now. I think the mayor wanted it done, but the property owners had too many friends.

The old Warrior might have his mad faults but who don't? And congratulations to him on his speech about the Chamber of Commerce.

Broad Generalizations Very Serious Pitfalls

One pitfall a person has to look out for when he sounds off in print every day is the tendency to make broad generalizations from too limited experience.

This is the same pitfall, of course, into which nearly everybody stumbles repeatedly in expounding his opinions vocally. But people expect such excesses from anyone who is just running off at the mouth, and usually pass them by without comment.

In cold type the mistakes stand out more conspicuously. And they are bound to come to the attention of somebody somewhere who is not about to take them lying down.

So the writer of a newspaper column receives a good deal of more or less constructive criticism aimed to set him straight when he's off base. Mostly this is a good medicine, and is duly appreciated. Even so, it often leaves a slightly medicinal taste in the mouth.

But the other day I got some of the most delicious criticism that ever came my way. You may recall that a few weeks ago I wrote a piece in which I remarked wistfully that you hardly ever see any jelly or jam around any more. Well, it came to the attention of a gentleman named Smucker in Orrville, Ohio, who says he has been reading and enjoying this column in the Wooster Daily Record.

Come to find out, Mr. Smucker knows a lot more about jellies and jams than I do. His grandfather started a jelly and jam foundry away back in 1897 which is now one of the top enterprises of its kind in the country.

He says I was misinformed; American preserves packed more than 800,000,000 pounds of preserves, jellies and apple butter last year—one of the record years—and there is plenty for all corners on the shelves of the grocery stores.

To clinch his point he sent me a case of assorted jellies and preserves. And although I haven't sampled them all yet I already stand corrected and convinced.

That's the kind of constructive criticism I like. It certainly beats any piece of anybody's mind I ever got.

If I have to eat my own words, I'm here to say it helps immeasurably to spread a little apple butter on them.

Actually, of course, I was aware that boughten jams and jellies were available but the ones I had tasted seemed a little on the insipid side. I guess I never gave them a fair sampling.

Thanks to Mr. Smucker, I now know that you can buy jellies just as good as—well, to be honest, I'll have to say better than—Mother used to make. Mother didn't always get "a good do" on her jelly. It had a tendency to turn out either runny or rubbery.

But it sure looked pretty in those rows of glasses, when the sun hit it just right.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Two Scotchmen were walking down a lane near Aberdeen (where else?) when one stopped and said, "Jack there's something flogging in your pocket. Don't tell me it's money." "I couldn't tell you that," admitted Jack, "because it wouldn't be true. The flogging is the wife's teeth. There's too much eatin' goin' on in my house 'tween meals."

"One day a lion caught me unaware without my gun," admitted an intrepid explorer, "but I just sat stock still and outstared him. The beast didn't so much as touch me."

"Incredible!" marvelled his dinner partner. "How do you explain that?" "One reason," mused the explorer, "may have been that I was sitting on the highest branch of a very tall tree."

There are about 21 million bicycles now in use in the United States, which is about ten times as many as there were in the 1880s, which has often been called the "bicycle age."

Gruenther Briefing Ike On Possibilities Of War

Washington, March 21 — General Alfred Gruenther is conferring at the White House for the purpose of answering two fateful questions.

The President personally summoned the NATO commander to get his views on:

What is Russia likely to do in the event of war with Red China, should it persist in attempting the armed seizure of Quemoy and Matsu Islands?

Will Moscow also go to war, or let Peiping fight it out alone? What is the attitude of allied military leaders regarding these two contingencies? What can be expected of the NATO powers; will they support the U. S. or what?

Opinion is divided among the policy-makers of the State Department and Pentagon on Soviet reaction to a clash between the U. S. and Red China over Formosa. Most of these officials doubt that the Kremlin would intervene militarily, but no one really knows.

Gruenther flew over from France, for the second time in a month, expressly to discuss this crucial factor and related matters.

These consultations are now essential for two reasons: President Eisenhower is considering the plan formulated by the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the defense of Quemoy and Matsu Islands.

Latest significant build-up development is the strong probability that the Communists are installing long-range rocket launchers in this area.

This sinister weapon gives the Reds truly fearful capabilities, as they would be able to blast not only the nearby coastal islands but also Formosa, possibly with atomic warheads. Recently Nationalist Intelligence sent a report to Washington claiming the Kremlin is stockpiling nuclear arms in China in preparation for war with the U. S.

According to prisoners of war and other sources, the Chinese have received several hundred Russian long-range rocket launchers. Also, that an estimated 1,000 Soviet officers and soldiers are training Chinese crews for operation of these weapons by May 1.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff consider these rocket launchers so menacing that their speedy destruction is a major feature of the defense plan.

Hunting Casualties Lessened

—by H. G. Heller

The Game Commission has completed the record of Pennsylvania's casualties by hunter firearms in 1954. The figures are based on reports required by State law of persons involved in human shootings while hunting or trapping for any species of wildlife.

In the Commonwealth last year 21 persons were killed in the hunting field by sporting arms. Injured in some degree by hunters' gunfire were 508. Two persons were injured by hunters' arrows.

Encouragingly, the 1954 fatal shootings numbered 13 less than the previous year, when 34 persons (an exceptionally high number for the State) met death in the hunting field through the discharge of their own weapons or that of another. In 1954, the number of injured, 510, was one higher than in 1953.

Injuries or deaths due to heart failure, those that occurred enroute to or from the hunting field and others caused by any incidental happening, are not included in this report.

Proving that hunting, as a rule, is a safe, healthful sport when the common sense rules of safety are observed, most of the near-miss hunters in Pennsylvania enjoyed their sport last year without a mishap.

As usual, the facts surrounding so-called hunting accidents indicate that in most instances a basic rule of safety was violated, either by the shooter or the victim.

Proof of this are these items taken from the 1954 Pennsylvania record. Nine of the fatalities were self-caused; 73 of the injuries were by the weapon in the hands of the person hurt. Two persons were killed and 12 were injured by guns placed in a dangerous position. Guns accidentally discharged in the hands of hunters caused the death of 6 persons, caused injury to 64. The "hunter slipped and fell (with safety off)" category, accounted for 5 deaths and 25 woundings. Shot in mistake for game caused 5 fatalities, 13 non-fatalities.

Surprisingly 7, or one-third the persons killed by hunter gunfire last year, were in open fields and two others were on public highways. Three hunters met death in daylight, none in dusk, dark or fog. Ten met their end during clear weather, removing the "did not see" excuse. The injury rate ran correspondingly high.

The shotgun caused 13 hunter deaths and 445 injuries. The rifle, 8 fatalities and 57 non-fatalities.

So the record goes, pointing to the fact most of these casualties by hunting arms need not have been. Any firearm can bring pleasure, pain or death, dependent on the handler.

Ten Day Sale Plan Opens On Wednesday

CULMINATING months of preparation on the part of executives, buyers and promotional departments, A. B. Wyckoff of Stroudsburg will on Wednesday of this week launch a ten-day sales promotion in celebration of eighty years of progressive merchandising in Monroe County. Designated as "Advance Selection Day" to give loyal store friends first opportunity to select from unusual "Best-Yet" values, Wednesday will inaugurate an exciting crescendo of jubilee events, the peak of which will be Ernest Wyckoff's traditional party for 50-year customers on Monday evening, March 28th, in the Tea-room.

On Thursday, the first day of the sale, corsages of violets will be presented the first 500 customers, and throughout the 10-day event, six pairs of Cameo hosiery will be presented daily. To participate in this feature, customers are invited to register each day at the hosiery department where winning names will be selected.

Contributing a major share to the sales appeal of this anniversary celebration will be the basement Sears, Roebuck store which became affiliated with Wyckoff's in August of 1933, adding twenty-one complete departments to make an impressive total of seventy-seven in the over-all store. Because of the completeness of its customer services and vast merchandise inventory, Wyckoff's has long since become recognized as "the largest small town department store in Pennsylvania."

The store, which opened its doors in April of 1875 in a small room of the Wyckoff family home, has now expanded up and down Main Street, and back to Quaker Alley where, adjacent to the big parking lot, separate buildings house the furniture refinishing, upholstery and slipcover workrooms, coffee roasting plant, service and plumbing departments, Sears farm store and service station.

The actual history of Wyckoff's dates back much further than eight decades, however. Now in its fourth generation of family management, Wyckoff's had its inception in a trade route operated by Daniel and Jacob Wyckoff back in 1850 when headlines across the nation were heralding the discovery of gold in California. It was the dream of these young brothers to bring merchandise from the city into this area, and return to the metropolis with the rural goods needed there. From these early days came the store's guiding precept of small profit and quick turnover.

It was Jacob's son, Amzi B. Wyckoff, who did more than perhaps any other man to build the family store into its present enviable position. And it is his son, upon whom the responsibility of the business fell at the time of the senior Mr. Wyckoff's death in 1912, who has been directly responsible for expanding the "New York store" of yesterday into the fascinating cosmopolitan store of today. It is he who has seen the store's rapid growth of the past few decades—the changing store fronts—the ever-improved standards of employee-employer relationship—and the introduction of countless customer services which were undreamed of during his father's life span.

There are customers who recall many phases of the store history from the day when it employed three or four people until its present payroll of 250. They recall also the change from a small frame building, to a large yellow brick building, which was further changed this past year when the exterior was painted gray, and the windows were beautified with window boxes and shutters that tie together the numerous properties absorbed during the store's continuous expansion along Main Street.

Mail orders have, within the past decade, become a tremendous part of Wyckoff's annual volume, largely due to the fact that visitors to this resort area carry away a lasting impression of the store where you can buy virtually anything. Carved teakwood tables from India... brass from England... linens, handmade by the hunger-driven masses of Chinese refugees... pewter from Holland and Norway... and handmade dolls from Switzerland are just a few of the strikingly unusual items to be found, along with staples, in the center aisle. It is Mr. Wyckoff himself who has made contacts with countless foreign markets, during his world-wide tours with patrons of the store's Travel Bureau.

As always at anniversary time, many of the employees will be seen around the store and town thoroughfares attired in the apparel of an earlier day. Large hats, flower bonnets, basque waists and floor length skirts will bring back memories of the time when the first Wyckoff advertisement offered such essentials as linen covered paper collars at fifteen cents a box, and brown muslin, one yard wide, at seven and eleven cents. As always, too, the appearance of these costumes—many of which were actually worn by Wyckoff customers during the 80 years span—will recall the faces of honored, beloved former employees whose long records of service contributed invaluable to the store's progress and growth. Particularly does the store honor the late Miss Anne M. Wyckoff, sister of Amzi, who was the first clerk. There are now more than seventy persons on the selling floor. This number will be considerably increased with extra help during the ten day anniversary celebration.

And if the bargains advertised in the newspapers of 1875 were considered out of the ordinary, they were nothing, store executives state, as to the bargains that are to be offered within the promotional period. Buyers have been on the market for months preparing for the sale which is appropriately designated as the "Best Yet" in Wyckoff's history. Every store employee has been part of the promotional team working toward the event. Not only has the usual inventory been augmented with special purchases, but regular prices have been drastically cut.

Kathy Mertz of Nazareth plays "Joan" while Jim Passaro, Allentown, taunts her in his role as a court pawn. "Joan" is on her way to court, escorted by two "captains" shown in background—Royal Johnson and Phil O'Neil. ## Soviets Still Face Upheaval In Government

By TOM WHITNEY AP Foreign Staff

SIX WEEKS have passed since Georgi Malenkov got fired as Soviet premier and it's still not clear whether Premier Nikolai Bulganin or Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev carries more weight in Soviet affairs.

In Moscow these days there's an air of expectation of further changes in the Soviet government.

There are persistent suggestions that the minister of culture, Georgi F. Alexandrov, may be in serious trouble. He is a wartime chieftain of the Communist party propaganda apparatus who twice in the post-war period got into difficulties for deviations from the party line.

In addition, there has arisen a peculiar situation over the post of minister of agriculture of the U.S.S.R. The former minister, Ivan Benediktov, was demoted to the post of minister of state farms on March 3 and no one has been appointed to his place. This is most unusual. Under Soviet practice it is highly irregular to announce the dismissal of a minister until a new minister has been named.

Since Bulganin became premier Feb. 8 the Soviet press has been very precise in two respects. Bulganin and Khrushchev have been regularly singled out for distinction a little above their other colleagues in the Kremlin's Big Nine. Newspapers have avoided doing anything which would give consistent priority in precedence over the other to either Khrushchev or Bulganin.

Thus the Soviet regime for the time being at least has continued to have the outward form of a duumvirate—the rule of two men. This is much as it was from June 1954, till Feb. 8, 1955, when the two men were Malenkov and Khrushchev.

There have been a few clues since Malenkov has been out as to the real power behind things.

On March 1 four new men were appointed to top level jobs in the Soviet government—as deputy premiers. Three were promoted to become the superiors of men who had previously been their superiors. Of the four men, analysis indicated that two seemed to be adherents of Nikita Khrushchev.

On March 3 three changes were announced in the ministerial posts. Two ministers were fired in disgrace. One had been Khrushchev's favorite target for criticism on the farm front. He was Alexei Koslov, a former chief of the agricultural section of the party's Central Committee and minister of state farms. A third minister, Benediktov, also a target for Khrushchev's condemnation, was demoted.

Just a few days ago a group of Soviet generals was promoted to the rank of marshal. About half were of Ukrainian origin. Khrushchev, though not a real Ukrainian, seemed to bring with him into prominent positions many Ukrainians.

While all these indications seem to point in the direction of Khrushchev as having an exceedingly strong hand in appointments, analysts profess to see a consistently stronger position for the Soviet Army. Bulganin was previously minister of defense and had close ties with many high-ranking Soviet military men.

Band To Give Annual Concert

STROUDSBURG HIGH School band will present its annual concert Friday, March 25.

Guest conductor of the group will be Allen W. Flock, assistant professor of music at Bucknell University. Regular director of the band is John Pyle.

A complete program for the concert will be announced next week, Pyle said.

A 1,573-foot television tower at Oklahoma City is claimed as the world's tallest structure by its users, comparing it with the 1,472-foot Empire State building.

There's Usually Fire Where There's Smoke, Events Prove

By Charles Mercer NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—It seemed last week that where there's smoke there's fire—sometimes.

The governor of Nebraska had just started addressing the Irvington volunteer fire department when the chief yelled, "Sorry, governor, we got an alarm." And off ran the audience to put out a fire.

After a gentleman in Wichita Falls, Tex., refused to let his wife drive either his car or his pick-up truck, he noticed smoke rising from both. That's right, she set them on fire.

A lady in Idaho Falls noticed smoke rising from the next-door house of a relative and ran out to give the alarm. Then she discovered her house was on fire, too.

And speaking of alarms in general, elevators specifically caused quite a few last week.

In Reading, Pa., an elevator "hung" a jury—for nearly an hour between the first and second floors of the court house. In Oklahoma City another elevator "hung" a bank night watchman—until his "strange noises" brought police.

And in New Orleans there was the case of the elevator that simply wasn't there. The operator left it there all right and stepped away for a minute. Then somebody moved it before the operator stepped back—into an empty shaft. The fall was short, but the let-down terrific. He was treated for bruises and loss of confidence.

There were other events that, while not hot news, were lukewarm. They showed there will always be publicity men.

In Miami, for example, a 19-year-old girl will try to hatch nine goose eggs by sitting on them 29 days. This for the benefit of a new restaurant.

Boston Choral Concert At Local Church

THE CONCERT of the Boston University Choral Arts Society which will be presented at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Tuesday at 8 p.m., is open to everyone to attend. A silver offering will be received to defray the expenses of the group. The forty members of the chorus will be entertained in the homes of the church.

Allen C. Lannon, associate professor of music and director of the Boston University Choral Art Society, has had an illustrious career marked with outstanding musical successes. Mr. Lannon's introduction to a musical life occurred while in college in California.

As a student he had ample opportunity to organize choral groups on the campus of the Pomona College in Central California. In addition, he sang in and directed church choirs and other youth groups.

At the conclusion of his college career, and for several years following he was director of the enormous Methodist Church Choir in Pasadena, the church in which the present president of Boston University, Dr. Harold C. Case, was the minister. In addition to his church work and private coaching, Mr. Lannon conducted his own "Chorale," a professional civic group in Los Angeles.

During these years he also had an opportunity of working with Robert Shaw and his Collegiate Choral. He has been associated with Juilliard in New York and three years ago came to Boston to assume his present position at Boston University.

Recognized as one of America's most able choral conductors, Mr. Lannon's sincere and inspired approach to music evokes warm responsiveness from his devoted musicians. His ability to control sound and portray a definite mood brings amazing results. Yet, with all his approach to music he never comes between his singers and his audience.

The demands made on his time and that of the Choral Art Society for performances in and around Greater Boston far exceed the time allotted for these people to perform. Boston critics in their newspaper reviews have been generous in their praise of Mr. Lannon's concert with the Choral Art Society.

Keat Broke Seven Records In Bangor High's Basketball

Junior Was At Center, Forward

BANGOR — Don Keat, high-scoring junior forward and center, broke seven individual scoring records in leading the Bangor High School basketball squad in scoring this past season.

Keat scored 350 points in 21 games eclipsing the mark set by Jim Rowlands of 307 in 21 games in 1952-53. In setting this record, Keat topped two more.

His 125 field goals for the season was eight better than the former record held by Al Capobianco set in 23 games in 1946-47; and his 100 foul goals broke the previous record of 98 set by Joe Heard in 19 games in 1952-53.

Keat also broke another record held by Heard when he made 17 foul goals in a single game against Wilson, on Feb. 8. Heard's record was 11 made against Coplay, Dec. 12, 1952. Keat also set a new home court record of scoring in a single game with his 39 points against Wilson on the same above date breaking a record of 36 previously held by Asa Pysker, set against East Stroudsburg on Feb. 12, 1952.

Keat averaged 16.6 points per game, also a new record eclipsing the 14.6 set by Rowlands in 1952-53. Keat finished in second place in the scoring race of the Lehigh-Northampton Athletic League with 302 points. In finishing second to Cal Vogel, Wilson Boro scoring ace, Keat finished higher than any player in Bangor High history.

Despite this fact, Keat only won honorable mention for the All-League team.

Following Keat in the Bangor scoring for the season were Arthur Parsons with 149 points, Duane Miller with 142, Wayne Pysker with 134, Jim Freeman with 72 and Glenwood Heard with 70. Keat had the best shooting percentage of 34.5 per cent connecting on 125 goals in 362 attempts.

Pysker was second best with 34.2 per cent. Jim Freeman paced the foul-shooting with a percentage of 64.1 hitting on 34 goals in 53 attempts. Pysker was second with 62.7 per cent hitting on 32 for 51 attempts. eKat also led his team in rebounding with 187 for an average of 9 per game.

Despite its losing record, the Bangor High squad also broke four team records during the season. They made 373 foul goals for the season besting the record of 341 set by the 1952-53 team. They made 36 foul goals in a single game against Wilson on Feb. 8 bettering a record set earlier in the season of 34 against Pen Argyl.

The previous record was 27 set against Nazareth, Dec. 19, 1952. They made 318 foul goals in league competition eclipsing the former record of 261 set in 1952-53. 177 points scored in the Wilson game of Feb. 8 set another record for the most points scored by both teams in a game. The previous was 68 with Fountain Hill, Jan. 20, 1953.

Eddie Traves, junior center, set a new league record for a single game with 27 points against Coplay on Jan. 18 bettering Gary Wynne's record of 25 against East Stroudsburg, Feb. 5, 1952.

Dale Miller, Soph forward, also set a new foul goal record for a single game scoring 15 against East Stroudsburg on Feb. 24. The previous record of 10 was shared by Miller, set earlier against Hellerstown on Jan. 14; Glenn Heard, against Hellerstown, Jan. 19, 1954, and Ron Everett, against Wilson, Jan. 8, 1954.

Traves led the Jayvees in scoring with 221 points in 21 games. He was paced by Dale Miller with 186, Bobby Butz with 161, Gary Strauss with 130 and Frank Brown with 108. Traves led the shooters with a 34.4 percentage as Strauss paced the foul goal shooters with 64.7 per cent.

Kansas City Stops Orioles

DATONA BEACH, Fla., March 20—Hector Lopez loomed into second base while second baseman Don Leppert held the ball today to set up the winning run as Kansas City edged Baltimore 3-2.

With Lopez digging for second on an attempt to steal, Leppert took a perfect peg and was waiting to tag the runner when Lopez slowed suddenly, and trotted. Leppert made no attempt to tag him.

Later, both players said they heard the umpire yell: "hold up, ball four, ball four." But Umpire Nestor Chylak said he didn't say a word. The count was only 2-2 on batter Jack Littrells, who promptly brought Lopez home with his five-inning tour.

Leroy Wheat and Ed Burtzky, the winner, combined to limit the Orioles to seven hits. Kansas City got nine off Jim McDonald and loser Saul Rogovin, although McDonald held them scoreless over his five-inning tour.

CAMERMAN Herbie Scharfman comes up with a fine shot of a double play during game between White Sox and Dodgers in Miami. Sandy Amoros of the Dodgers is out at second base as Bert Hamric of the Bums legs it for first only to have the ball, thrown by Chico Carrasquel of the Sox, beat him.

Thirteen Candidates Report For Bangor High's Baseball

BANGOR—Thirteen more candidates for the Bangor High School baseball squad joined the 20 already working out under the tutelage of Coach J. L. (Jabby) Williams.

Workouts have been held daily at the Blue Valley Farm Show Building, but Coach Williams expects to get outside to work out sometime this week.

The 13 new aspirants joined the squad after the completion of the basketball season. All were members of the basketball squad.

They are: Wayne Pysker, Duane Miller, seniors; Gary Strauss, Jim Freeman, Donald Keat, juniors; Glenn Heard, J. L. Williams Jr., Bobby Butz, sophomores; and Barry Moore, Bobby Letwinch, Brian Jones, Larry Cory and Jim LaBar, freshmen.

Ralph (Barney) Stenlake, senior catcher; Senior Larry Raph and Strauss, pitchers; Keat, Heard and Williams, infielders; and Junior Jack Stenlake and Miller, outfielders; form the nucleus of this year's team, all of them being returning lettermen.

Pysker, Freeman, Butz, Vern Smith, Don Evans and Bob Stansberry all had some experience to the squad. Almost all the rest of the squad are graduates of the State Belt Babe Ruth League and of Bangor's Little League which provides Williams with some promising hope.

The Dodgers added a run to their lead at the expense of Russell on Amoros' sacrifice fly in the eighth. The Yankees tied it in the ninth when Tom La Sorda walked three men following a single by Gil McDougald and Yogi Berra pinch hit a sacrifice fly.

Wall Moves From 11th To Third With 66 ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The iron-nerve and know-how of a veteran paid off in the stretch today as Gary Middlecoff overcame a five-stroke deficit to clip youthful Kay Hebert for the championship of the $12,500 St. Petersburg Open Golf tournament.

Five blows behind at the start of the last 18 hole round, Middlecoff fired a five-under par 67 to catch Hebert five holes from home and beat him by two strokes with a 72-hole total of 274.

Wiltling under the pressure applied by Middlecoff, who played with him in the same threesome, the 32-year-old Hebert chopped out a 74 for 276.

It was the third tournament Hebert had blown in the final showdown during the winter tour. He almost fell victim, too, to a great last-day rally by Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., who shot the day's best round of 66 to move up from 11th place into third with 277, just one stroke back of Hebert.

Pocono League Playoffs To Be Set Up

Stroudsburg Poconos will play Williams Pharmacy that night, said Tom Shiffer, team manager.

Slippery Rock Man Wins Race

Heavyweights Dominating Boxing Cards

By ED CORRIGAN The Associated Press

HEAVYWEIGHTS, all burning to get a shot at Rocky Marciano's title, dominate the fight program this week with Bob Baker, the No. 3 challenger, in the top bout.

The 28-year-old Pittsburgh giant will test Havana's Julio Mederos in a 10-round Friday in Madison Square Garden. The bout will be broadcast and telecast by NBC.

Mederos, a 6-2 puncher, is fresh from his spectacular fifth-round knockout of Roland La Starza on March 2. That was the first time a heavyweight has knocked out La Starza.

Mederos is reputed to be exceptionally fast and possessor of a good right hand. He's a former sparring partner of Baker and this one should show just how far he can go, because the Pittsburgh veteran is a pretty fair country heavyweight.

The Cuban, incidentally, doesn't speak a word of English, except: "Marciano." He probably learned that after his triumph over La Starza and will be shouting it from the rooftops if he gets past Baker.

Tonight at Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn, there will be an all-heavyweight card. The top scrap of 10 rounds (ABC-TV) will pair Wayne Bethea of New York against Irish Joe Rowan.

Betha has fought only eight times as a pro. He has won 6, lost 1 and drawn 1. His main claim to fame is a seventh-round knockout over Harold Carter last December. It snapped an 11-victory skid for the latter.

Rowan, a truck driver when he is not fighting, is an explosive puncher and has 13 knockouts to his credit in 24 triumphs. He stopped Burt Whitehurst, a fair journeyman, in one earlier in the month.

The rival St. Nicholas Arena, which telecasts over DuMont, will show Rafael Merentino of Argentina and Jackie LaBar of New York, in a middleweight 10 tonight.

Merentino—called the Little Wild Bull of the Pampas after Luis Agnel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas—is a free swinger and willing mixer, but he has trouble getting away from punches.

Willie Pastrano of New Orleans, undefeated in his last eight efforts, will take Joey Giardello's place in the middleweight 10 against Al Andrews of St. Paul Wednesday in Chicago Stadium. The bout will be telecast by CBS-TV.

Giardello was convicted of assault in a brawl in Philadelphia last week. This will be a big one for young Pastrano, although he has some notable victories to his credit including one over Bobby Dykes, who is no pushover. However, Andrews appears too experienced.

Another heavyweight battle is slated for Tuesday when Bob Statterfield of Chicago and Marty Marshall of Detroit are slated to go 10 in Miami Beach, while Friday at Spokane, Murray Burnett of Chicago and Pat McMortury of Tacoma, Wash., another pair of the big boys, are down for an eight.

Sullivan Shuts Out Detroit Tigers

SARASOTA, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Towering Frank Sullivan shut out the Detroit Tigers with one hit in five innings while his Red Sox team mates whaled four Detroit pitchers as Boston chalked up a one-sided 10 to 3 victory before 2,134 fans here today.

The Red Sox jumped on Duane Maas right from the start. Maas had seven scoreless innings against Philadelphia and St. Louis, but he failed to last three innings. He was followed by Bill Frousts, Van Fletcher and Tom Sharkey who shared in the pummeling.

Billy Goodman led the Boston attack with four hits in five trips to the plate.

Adcock's Honor Breaks Tie

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Joe Adcock's home run over the left field fence in the eighth inning broke a 4-4 tie today and gave the Milwaukee Braves their second spring victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 4.

It was the Braves' second homer of the game. Hank Aaron hit one over the same fence with a runner on base in the third inning off starter Stu Miller.

The Cards made all their runs in the first inning when they hit Lew Burdette for four straight safeties.

Adcock's winning homer was the only run off George Schultz, who pitched the last three innings for the Cards. The Cards outbatted the Braves but couldn't cash their scoring chances.

Bill Russell Named Top NCAA Player

By Jerry Liska

KANSAS CITY, March 20 (AP)—Towering Bill Russell today was voted the most valuable player in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. tourney. But his teammate on the championship San Francisco squad, K. C. Jones, was pegged a ranking hero.

The 6-10 Russell set a new five-game scoring record of 118 points for the NCAA tourney as he helped carry the Dons, No. 1 ranked in the national Associated Press poll, to a title triumph over defending champion LaSalle 77-63, Saturday night.

Russell, scoring 23 points — 18 in the first half—was voted the most valuable player by some 40 press and radio representatives covering the tournament.

However, San Francisco Coach Phil Woolpert said Jones' "great job of stopping (Tom) Gola, LaSalle's All-America player, with only six field goals, was perhaps the deciding factor in our team's great defensive effort."

Gola scored 16 points. Jones, 6-1, 202-pound guard, scored 24 points, high production figure in the dethroning of LaSalle's heralded Explorers.

Russell said "I played on the greatest team in the world and we defeated the best team we ever played."

The all-tournament team, selected after San Francisco posted La Salle and Big Seven champion Colorado beat Big Ten champion Iowa 75-54, included:

Russell and Gola, as unanimous choices; Iowa's Carl Cain; Jones; and Colorado's Jim Rangios.

Ken Loeffler, La Salle coach, said he was naturally disappointed in his team's play, but that "we definitely lost to the better team."

San Francisco, rolling to its 26th straight victory, finished its season with a 28-1 record.

The lone Don loss was a 47-40 setback by UCLA in San Francisco's third game. Just two games later San Francisco whipped the Uclans 56-44.

Russell took personal charge against La Salle in the first half, scoring 18 points, actually propelling in most of his field goals from on top of the basket.

Gola was assigned to Russell defensively, although La Salle played a sliding zone defense much of the time. However, Jones latched onto Gola almost all of the way and the La Salle All-America only scored nine points the first half.

Ricketts, Green, Foran Named With Fleming To AP's NIT All-Star Basketball Squad

By Ed Willis

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Maurice Stokes, All-America Dick Ricketts, St. Francis, and Ed Fleming, That's the Associated Press 1955 all-star National Invitation basketball tournament team.

Picking them was easy. Off what they showed in the week-long NIT, won last night by Duquesne, there was no doubt they were the best of the lot.

It was Stokes, Maurice the magnificent, who almost single handed carried little St. Francis (Pa.) into the semifinals. And it was not his fault that the Frankies missed getting into the finals. He scored 43 points, rebounded excellently, fed beautifully and defended superbly as St. Francis finally gave in to Dayton in overtime. And he almost matched that demonstration in the third-place game, as St. Francis again fell short in overtime, 96-91, to Cincinnati.

Stokes was the unanimous choice of the NIT committee for the tourney's most valuable player award.

What Stokes just missed doing to Dayton in the semifinals, Ricketts and Green of Duquesne accomplished in the championship game. The Dukes, who had been fourth, third and the runnerup in succession in three previous years, finally clicked to whip Dayton 70-58 — and Ricketts and Green scored 56 points between them.

What little Dayton had was presented by Horan, a 6-8 guy who scored 20 points in the title game and played well throughout the tourney.

Fleming, like Stokes, wasn't with a winner. His Niagara team lost to Cincinnati in a quarterfinal overtime struggle. But until Cincinnati salted it away, Niagara looked like the best team in the competition. And it was Fleming who made it so.

What Ricketts and Green accomplished in the title game was almost unbelievable. They scored all of Duquesne's points in the first half as the Dukes led 35-30 at the intermission. It wasn't until 7½ minutes had passed in the second half that another Duquesne player scored.

Mickey Winograd provided that contribution with a free throw that made it Ricketts-Green 44, Dayton 40. Shortly after, Dayton went into a shifting zone, lunging after the ball in desperation.

It was then that Duquesne Coach Duddy Moore yelled: "now you're ready for them! We got 'em!" He was right. Dayton had been had. Within 4 minutes, Duquesne expanded a five-point lead into a 12-point edge and it was all over.

Moore, who thought his Dukes had reached their season peak when they won the Christmas Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden by beating LaSalle, ("We had more zip then"), said the Green-Ricketts monopoly on the scoring was a mercy.

"We didn't plan it that way, but naturally we set them up for most of the scoring. When they hit against Dayton's big men, we, of course, yelled to 'give them the ball.' But it wasn't planned."

Dayton's big men, 7-foot Bill Uhl and Horan, got 45 points between them; Uhl, though a giant, was a stationary giant. And Horan simply was outmanned with just Green netting 33 and Ricketts 23.

Varsity S Club Does Car Washing

STROUDSBURG High School's "Varsity S Club" members made $65 Saturday washing cars.

Price tag on the wash job was a buck a throw. Proceeds will be used to make awards for outstanding participation in athletics at the club's annual award meeting near the end of the school year.

Samuel Wells, adviser to the club, said the Saturday event was a "huge success." This opinion was echoed, and doubled, by Bill Morman, club president, who said it has been far more successful than anyone had thought it would be.

Club members began washing cars at 8:30 Saturday morning. Some of the wash jobs were done at the home of the motorist. Others were done at a service station at Ninth and Main Sts.

The last of the cars was washed at about 6 p.m. Saturday, Morman said. Both Wells and Morman expressed their gratitude to the motorists who made the successful drive for funds possible.

Gualteri Loses

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 20 (AP)—Al Gualteri of Washington Pa., lost a 10-round decision to Noel Humphreys of Charleston last night in the main event of a boxing card at the Charleston Armory. Humphreys weighed 138½, Gualteri 134½.

and both doing remarkable work under the boards.

It was a fantastic game to watch with Green and Ricketts carrying on the battle alone on offense for so long. They had splendid help on defense, of course, from Mickey Winograd, Jim Fallon and Dave Ricketts. The Dukes' ball-handling against the Dayton zone was superb.

That was the NIT, with Duquesne, a runnerup last year, finally getting the big pay off while Dayton became a second-best club for the third time.

Grapefruit Circuit Produces Some Highly Interesting Game Reactions

By Whitney Martin
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Grapefruit circuit:

Hardest working fellow in spring training — Herman Wehrner, the Phillie pitcher, would make Hank Greenberg in his prime look like he was picking buttercups, and Hank put in more honest toil than any two ambitious rookies. Stan Musial says he would settle right now for a .350 batting average for 1955. Figures that would win the crown. "Think I'll start bunting," he laughs. "Could add 15 or so hits." He seldom bunts, and never is ordered to lay one down. Knows he is paid to hit, and that his hitting would help the Cardinals more than bunting. So you won't see him bunting much, despite his threat.

Fred Haney's apt description of Jerry Lynch, one of his holdovers

Pirates: "He does well until he gets in parks with double-deck stands." Haven't seen any umpires holding a watch on pitchers to see they don't violate the 20-second time limit. Wonder what they'd do if they did catch a chucker kiffing with no men on base? Probably blow a whistle and run over and drop a handkerchief as they do in football.

Hal Schumacher, former New York Giant pitching great and now an enterprising bat salesman, standing behind the batting cage at Bradenton and seeing a batter handoffed by a young pitcher: "That's the best pitch in baseball — a sinker breaking in on the fist." Remember Johnny Vandermeer? He's doing okay. Bought a prosperous hardware and sporting goods business in Tampa, and has a job managing the Daytona Beach team this year.

Speaking of bats, as we were a moment ago, the war clubs of three of the game's top sluggers seem to fit their personalities and techniques. Stan Musial, whose every movement is a picture of rhythm and grace, uses a symmetrical bat that appears almost dainty. It weighs only 31 or 32 ounces, is 34½ inches long, has a very small barrel and the handle is so thin it looks like it would snap off if tapped lightly against a piece of spaghetti. He seldom breaks one, though, as he invariably hits the ball in the area of one little circle on the meat of the club.

The bat people should present Ted Kluszewski with a plaque as the prize customer. A bruiser of a man, the Redleg first baseman breaks as many as three dozen a year, and on a particularly arduous day is liable to shatter three of them. It's a heavy club, about 36 ounces, with a gradual flair at the handle end instead of the usual knob. He grips it like a golfer, and doesn't use the full power of his enormous hands because the fingers are just too big to get around it comfortably. "I hit the ball all over the bat," he says with a grin. "I haven't the coordination of a Williams or Musial, so must rely on sheer power."

Williams, who incidentally has had two dozen bats waiting for him in the Red Sox clubhouse, uses bats varying in weight from 32 to 36 ounces, depending on the pitcher to be faced. The lighter bats are for the fast pitchers, and vice versa. Quick quote: Musial, who plays nearly every exhibition game: "I'm a slow starter, and it gets me warmed up for the season. Eddie (Stanky) is very nice about it. Let's me play whenever I want. All my managers have been that way." THEY LET HIM PLAY.

House To Pass Senate's Resolution Approving No UC Cut On March 31

HARRISBURG, March 20 (AP)—The formula calls for cutting benefits from $30 to $20 and increasing employer payroll taxes from last year's average of 1.2 per cent to the ceiling of 2.7 per cent.

Senate Democrats knocked out of the resolution any reference to halting the employer tax boost. In effect, it would leave the bureau with authority to stop a cut in benefits but without power to do anything but push employer taxes to the 2.7 per cent ceiling.

Although the 2.7 per cent payroll tax would take effect on April 1, the taxes actually are payable until July 1—and Republicans were hopeful the entire compensation controversy could be ironed out before employers start paying the new installment of payroll taxes.

But the main battle on the jobless benefits dispute centers in the Senate, where Republicans hope to back-track over last week's setback by the Democrats, with the aid of the vote of an injured GOP senator, who has been hospitalized since the last six weeks.

Sen. John T. Van Sant (R-Lehigh) plans a dramatic ambulance drive from Allentown to the State Capitol to aid his Republican colleagues in the compensation controversy.

As the two sides squared away to renew the fight, the Republican leadership said their side is "going to get rough" while Democrats said there would be "no let down" in their stand unless Democratic senators "change their viewpoint" over the weekend.

Van Sant's vote will give the Republicans 25 votes, a one-vote margin to maneuver the bill. But the GOP still will be one vote short of the necessary 26 votes to pass it. Democrats, with 24 members, need two more votes to pass a bill.

However, Sen. Rowland B. Mahany, Republican floor leader, said that with Van Sant's vote they could return the bill to the Senate Labor and Industry Committee to be rewritten along Republican lines.

Van Sant, who was injured in an automobile accident six weeks ago, was called back to the Senate to break a 24-24 deadlock over the bill.
